This weekend marks the start of June, which also happens to be the start of Pride Month here in New York City. Pride never fails to be a source of both joy and entertainment, but this year's celebration marking the 50th anniversary of the Stonewall riots is sure to stand out. Here, a list of 19 ways to celebrate Pride 2019 whether you're LGBTQIA+ or a steadfast ally.

Picnic and take in a drag show on Governors Island.

This summer, the Human Impact Institute has put together the House of Solutions, an event space on Governors Island dedicated to engaging visitors about the threat of climate change. To kick off the residency, the HII will host Climate's a Drag, a climate-change-themed drag show featuring House of Yes's Madame Vivien V. The show is totally free to take in, so just pack a picnic and show up.
